My contracts professor in law school once remarked that attorneys were the grease in the gears of commerce. Those words stuck with me throughout my career. I pride myself on getting things done for my clients with a minimum of conflict and stress. Whether it's a business transaction, a real estate matter, or assisting a governmental agency in accomplishing its goals, a satisfied client is my greatest professional satisfaction.

Away from work, I enjoy sailing on the Great Lakes during the summer months and skiing in the winter. My indoor time is spent listening to music of all kinds and tackling my long reading list. I also enjoy the time I am able to devote to the various artistic and charitable activities that abound in our community.
