From building catapults in my backyard as a child to sorting out business disputes today, I have always loved solving problems. I focus my practice on matters related to business and real estate, where I work to know the ins and outs of my clients' companies and endeavors. I practice in both the transactional and litigation realms to allow me to provide well-rounded advice, taking into account various legal aspects and practical considerations.

When I am not working, I enjoy rock-climbing, playing soccer, and reading. I grew up in the Grand Rapids, Michigan area and enjoy staying connected in the community with friends and family.
