While I love every aspect of being an attorney, I enjoy the people-side of practicing law the most: meeting new clients, listening carefully to understand their goals, and then partnering with them to protect their interests and solve problems efficiently. No matter the issue, my focus is always on building trust, communicating clearly, and delivering practical results that make a real difference.

Outside of the office, my wife and I love bringing our young Australian shepherd (named Bowie) to our favorite local places, and he is happy to go anywhere as long as he can hang his head out of the window during the car ride. Our favorite pastime is being with our family and friends, but I also enjoy fly fishing on the Rogue and Coldwater Rivers and strapping into my snowboard when the snow begins to fall.
